Rempstone is an independent organisation founded in 1974 by the late Harold Elbourne. It is organised by a committee made up of current leaders, many professionally involved in education, and some former campers. Tent Leaders are often university students and great care is taken over vetting the suitability of all of those invited to help, including enhanced DBS checks.

Rempstone is a Christian adventure holiday based in Dorset for those aged 11-16. It offers a wide range of activities, all of which are included in the camp fee. Our sheltered site is located in the picturesque Purbeck area to the south of Poole Harbour between Corfe Castle and Studland. Campers sleep in tents supervised by a tent leader and there is a great community atmosphere. The tents are comfortable by camping standards and there is room for a small camp bed or a lilo. The washing facilities and toilets as well as the tents for boys and girls are separated. There is a large central marquee which is used for meals and meetings.

All those who help with the camp are Christians, which is why they give their time and pay to come in order to share their faith with the campers. One of the leaders gives a brief presentation at breakfast and we get together each evening for an informal meeting to sing a few songs and to discover how relevant Jesus is to our lives today. The style is clear and rational, but unpressured, with lots of time to ask questions.

Our experienced caterers provide a good cooked breakfast, a packed lunch, a filling supper and a bedtime snack each day. There is a tuck shop.

Several leaders are 1st Aid trained and we have a doctor on the team.
